

Hanan Abu Dalu is the principal of the Al Sawahreh Middle School in Jerusalem. She is a Muslim Palestinian with Jordanian citizenship, was born in the city of Jerusalem, was raised in Kuwait, and lived in Jordan. She lives in Jerusalem. Hanan has worked as an English teacher for 35 years, 20 years of them as English coordinator in Jordan and in Jerusalem for all school stages and levels. Hanan was elected as one of the first two women to the Bet Safafa - Sharafat Council, the towns' administrative council in East Jerusalem, where she headed the Education and Early Childhood Committee. Hanan often lectures about education, feminism, and conflict resolution. She sits on the boards of the English Teachers Association in Israel (ETAI) and the Interreligious Council in Israel (ICCI). She has BA degree in English Literature from Kuwait University, a T.E.F.L Diploma from University of Jordan and holds an MA degree from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem in English Literature. Hanan is married to Emad, is a proud mother of two sons and one daughter, and a grandmother of four.